Further, it is possible to adopt an optical fiber cable to the optical path A. (See, for example, optical fiber 119 represented in phantom in FIG. 1). In such case, it is possible to separate the reflecting mirror 112 and the rotary drive mechanisms 1101 and 1111 from the main case 118, to connect the reflecting mirror 112 via the optical fiber cable to the optical path A and to control the rotary drive mechanisms 1101, 1111 by the control unit 102 in a similar manner as described above so as to control the direction of the reflecting mirror 112.
